Course Description

Human capital is the collective knowledge, skills, networks, and other intangible assets of individuals that can be used to create economic value for the individuals, their organizations, and other stakeholders. Understanding how to manage human capital effectively is critical to organizational performance, as an organization's people are responsible for gaining and keeping a competitive advantage. The course provides a comprehensive analysis of individual and group behavior in organizations. Various topics will be covered such as job satisfaction, motivation, diversity, individual decision-making, group behavior, communication, leadership, and human resource practices.

Course Objectives:

After completing this course, you will be able to:

- Understand the organizational system, including organizational structures, culture, human resources, and change.
- Describe how personality, attitudes, and values influence behavior in organizations.
- Apply concepts of motivation to develop strategies for improving work performance and organizational effectiveness.

- Understand group behavior in organizations, including communication, leadership, power and politics, conflict, and negotiations.

Course Textbooks
